

Matthew Bunney

Museum Director,
Global Markets Consultant, Lecturer

Matthew is the Deputy Director of Guangzhou Oriental Museum, a premier comprehensive Chinese history and fine art museum which strives to collect, research, and promote Chinese life, culture, and wisdom and to offer a positive learning environment for future generations. In his role as international research director, he has traveled across 6 continents researching Chinese porcelain and lecturing at universities and academic institutions.

He spearheaded the museum's investment strategy portfolio and acts as a Global Markets Consultant for Wisser Investments. On its behalf, he has traveled to multiple countries contributing first-hand commodities research for utilization in stock, futures, and options investment, providing his team with insights for client portfolio growth.

Matthew earned his bachelor's degree in Business Supply Chain Management from Arizona State University. He completed a Certificate of Chinese Language Studies at Shandong Finance University in Shandong, China, and is fluent in Mandarin Chinese.

He has been married to Annabelle since 2009, and they have two children: Jora (2011) and Micah (2014). His interests include history, travel, and sports. Though born in the USA and married in Australia, he and his family call China home.
