

Tammy S. Wright

Operations & Sales Executive

In July 2020, Tammy retired after serving for 33 years with RELX. She held senior level positions with three RELX businesses including LexisNexis Legal & Professional and LexisNexis Risk Solutions in the US as well as Elsevier in Amsterdam, Netherlands. Her career included extensive experience in sales leadership and strategy, business and operational leadership, transformative business change, business systems technology development, and acquisitions and integrations. In her last position with Elsevier, she led a global team of 150 professionals who were engaged in business development, sales operations, customer engagement, order-to-cash and sales learning, and performance to drive sales productivity and effectiveness.

Considered an authentic, enthusiastic, and persuasive leader, Tammy believes: “People need something to believe in, someone to believe in, and someone who believes in them.” Her leadership style and reputation is one of integrity, humility, and courage.

Tammy holds a Bachelor of Science, Accountancy, from Miami University and is a certified personal trainer. She is married and has two daughters and four grandchildren. Her interests include fitness, nutrition, hiking, and international travel. She and her husband lived in Amsterdam, Netherlands, for three years and recently returned to the US to spend more time with their family.

