

Marty Gurry

Small Business Owner, Former Corporate Executive

Marty is the owner and operator of a small business that helps homeowners recover from disasters such as floods and fires.

Before starting his own business, Marty spent 24 years in various corporate roles. He began with 12 years in audit and consulting at Arthur Andersen and Deloitte, working with both local businesses and global enterprises. He then transitioned into leadership roles in audit, finance, operations, and strategy, spending 12 years as a director at Meijer, a $25 billion retailer, and Amway, an $8 billion direct marketer.

Marty holds a bachelor's degree in Accounting from Xavier University and an MBA from Grand Valley State University.

In his free time, he enjoys cooking (and eating!), exploring new places, reading nonfiction, and spending time with his wife and children. Originally from Cincinnati, Ohio, Marty now lives in Indianapolis, Indiana, with his wife, who is from Taipei, Taiwan, and their two children. His mission is to equip others to live and work better.
