

Matt Dodson

Leader, Executive Coach, Organizational Development Manager

Matt Dodson is responsible for Organizational Development and Coaching at Chevron. In this role, he's been a catalyst for transformational leadership, helping those around him understand the integral role it plays in achieving success and delivering results.

Prior to that, he was the program manager for the CEO's Advanced Management Program for future executives and was responsible for and facilitated other coaching and nominated corporate programs. Within the last 12 years, he has focused on all aspects of leader and employee development from identification, selection, assessment, succession, and development.

He joined Chevron in 2000 and has been involved in all parts of the crude-to-customer value chain which brings the energy that improves lives and powers the world forward.

Matt earned his bachelor's degree in Business from Pepperdine University in Malibu, California, and his Master of Business Administration from the University of California at Davis. He and his wife, Allie, have been married since 1999 and have two children. They live in Sugar Land, Texas. His interests include running, reading, and counseling.

