

Nick Kuechly

Entrepreneur, Business Executive

Nick is the co-founder of two real estate investment companies—Mountain Holdings and Mountain Bear Creek—which focus on providing tenants with outstanding commercial, office, and industrial space.

Prior to his real estate ventures, Nick bought J&N and served in leadership roles in finance, HR, IT, operations, and sales before becoming President. During his tenure, J&N's sales grew organically more than 500%. As President, Nick led the strategic sale of J&N to Arrowhead Engineered Products, for which he then served as Vice-President and General Manager of Rotating Electrical Products.

Nick has also worked for PricewaterhouseCoopers, where he gained valuable exposure and training in business and financial management.

He has a bachelor's degree in Business Administration with a concentration in Accounting from the University of Notre Dame in Indiana. He also holds a CPA license and CGMA designation.

Nick is married and has six children ages 4-18. His interests include education, travel, investing in people, shooting-type sports, and skiing. He has lived and studied in India.
