

Paul Belcher

International Consultant & Retired Insurance Agent

For more than a decade, Paul has served as an international consultant, advising organizations across Central and Eastern Europe.

He began his career as a management trainee at the State Farm Insurance headquarters in Bloomington, Illinois, and rose to the position of unit manager at the Illinois Regional Office. In 1981, he established his own successful insurance agency in Eagle River, Wisconsin. In addition to his professional achievements, Paul has been active in his community, coaching high school varsity football and girls' hockey.

Paul graduated from Wheaton College, Illinois, in 1979, with a degree in Economics. During his time at Wheaton, he was a catcher on the baseball team and a quarterback on the football team.

Paul and his wife, Barbara, whom he married in 1979, are proud parents of three adult daughters and have nine grandchildren. He enjoys golf, reading, playing bass guitar, singing, hiking, traveling, and boating.
